

My Why

I do the work I do because I believe in the power of transformation, both for individuals and for communities. Growing up, I was fortunate to experience firsthand the life-changing impact of education, thanks to the generosity of someone who believed in me and covered my college tuition. That single act of kindness set me on a path that led to a successful career and, eventually, the founding of multiple businesses.

As a veteran, an engineer, and an entrepreneur, I've seen how hard work and the right opportunities can change the trajectory of not only one life but entire families and communities. Now, with Gladstone Commercial Capital and The Levermore Foundation, I'm paying it forward. I help businesses succeed, young minds access education, and communities grow through sustainable practices and strategic investments.

My family drives my passion, inspiring me every day to create opportunities for others. By helping small businesses thrive and future leaders receive the education they need, I aim to foster growth, positivity, and a brighter future for all.

I do this because I believe in the power of community, in the importance of education, and in leaving the world a better place than I found it.
